

Don Duggan-Haas

Don Duggan-Haas is the Education Research Associate at the Paleontological Research Institution and its Museum of the Earth in Ithaca, NY (though he telecommutes from Amherst, near Buffalo).

Our Group's Website is a Wiggio site: http://wiggio.com/#tpl=posts_549184
Some thoughts on our first meeting (8/25/10):

Technology is both really cool and really frustrating. Having suffered through technological struggles in leading PD, I appreciate the good grace of the participants to sit through it. Chatting during the call gave me a sense of attitude toward technology (which I find somewhat telling of other attitudes) gave me good vibes about the nature of the group and our work together. Many of folks are doing things of interest and using a range of resources that I look forward to learning more about.

In spite of that rough beginning, it was a really juicy conversation with lots of good idea sharing. Unfortunately, I've got to zip off to other places so I can't write more tonight.

Recruitment

12.07.10: I have 5 people signed up. We had a meeting last night, on December 6th.

Resources